

Collective Courage

A history of African American Economic Cooperative
Thought & Practice

A book talk with Jessica Gordon Nembhard

Monday, September 29, 2014 | 12:30pm – 2pm

Presented by the Department of African American & African Studies
University of Minnesota, Humphrey School of Public Affairs (room 180)
301 19th Ave S., Minneapolis

Professor Jessica Gordon Nembhard will present research from her new book Collective Courage: A History of African American Economic Cooperative Thought & Practice (2014). In her book, Gordon Nembhard explores the long hidden history of African American cooperative business ownership in the U.S., including its place in the movements for civil rights and economic equality. Gordon Nembhard is a political economist and professor at John Jay College of the City University of New York.

Registration: Space is limited, register to attend by Sept., 24th at <http://s.coop/1uzqi>. Bring your own lunch or purchase a box lunch in advance. For more information, contact: 612-625-9847, aaas@umn.edu.

This event is co-funded by: African American & African Studies Department, Nexus Community Partners, Seward Community Co-op, The Cooperative Foundation, Cooperative Development Services, Eastside Food Co-op, Triangle Park Creative.

AFRICAN AMERICAN & AFRICAN STUDIES
COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS
UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA